PREFACE

The Dūta-kāvya form an important Branch of Sanskrit Literature. They are more or less composed after the model of Kālidāsa's Megha-dūta. The central theme is always the same, viz., a messenger is sent by one party to the other, although all sorts of subjects have been chosen such as love, religion, philosophy, devotion, etc.; also all sorts of messengers, animate or inanimate such as the moon, the wind, the swan, the cuckoo, foot-step, Tulasī leaf, etc.

The Vāg-maṇḍana-guṇa-dūta-kāvya is now published for the first time as Work No. 2 of the Series Saṃskṛta-Dūta-kāvya-saṃgraha. It does not follow the usual theme of the Dūta-kāvya, i.e. the sending of a messenger, animate or inanimate, by a separated lover to his beloved and vice-versa in imitation of Kālidāsa's immortal work Megha-dūta, nor does it take up a religio-philosophical subject as subsequently done at times but deals with a rather unique subject, viz., soliciting the patronage of a king by a humble poor poet. The Poetic quality or Śūkta-guṇa is sent by the poet as a messenger to king Bhīmasena alias Kāmarūpa. As such, the present work is indeed important from the point of view of the history of Dūta-kāvya Literature.

The MS. used, belonging to the Royal Asiatic Society of Bengal, is the only extant one. Fortunately, however, it is fairly correct.

I am grateful to the authorities of the Royal Asiatic Society of Bengal for kindly permitting me to edit this manuscript.

The Poet

Vīreśvara was the son of Srīrāma Tripāṭhin and grandson of Gopāla Ārya and flourished in Brādhnapura.¹ He was a Brāhmaṇa (v. 99). He claims that he was versed in Pāṇini, dramas as well as kāvyas.² He was very poor³ and approached many kings for help.⁴ He was confident of his natural genius and training and further unqualified success as a poet provided he proved lucky in getting proper patronage.⁵ He composed also Oṣṭha-stuti-śataka⁶ and Jagan-maṅgala-stotra⁷ in praise of women and Goddess Ambikā respectively.

The Subject matter of the Vāṇ-maṇḍanaguṇa-dūta-kāvya.

In this Dūta-kāvya, Vīreśvara sends his own Poetic Quality as a messenger to king Bhīmasena alias Kāmarūpa with the object of getting his patronage so that he might acquire immortal poetic fame. The conveyance of the messenger is the mouth of a learned person and its route is Rāgapura (in Bradhnapura) to Kālībhatti (in Māyāpur) i.e. from the place of the poet to the palace of Kālībhatti via. Budhavārapura, Rahipura, Nimbola, Premasarāha, Maṇḍapa and Prātaśvenapura. The Messenger is to undertake a journey of five days. On his way he will come across temples of Śiva, Ambikā and Viṣṇu in succession. Passing by a tank and a number of flower-beds while still at Bradhnapura, he will be delighted to see a bit of city-life in streets, jail etc., and also the garden of Hasan Yavana where the damsels throng together and then, the temple of goddess Ambikā erected by Premarāja.

5. V. 6 and v. 90

6. V. 32; justification for describing fallen women etc.;
v. 59a.

7. V. 41.

He will have to cross a river on the border of Bradhnapura; then come Rahīpura and Nimbola. Passing them, he will go by Seragiri Road and before he reaches Premasarāha, he will be lucky in having a glimpse of the women of Cūnakhāna and an opportunity of paying his homage to Āśāpurī. He will take rest for the first night in the village Maṇḍapa, second night in the house of Navīsarīha and the third at Prātaśvenapura. The fourth night is to be passed under the hospitality of Omkāra Mīśra of Cārava and his younger brother Rāmāji. On the fifth day before he reaches Kālībhitti, he will see a beautiful garden. At Kālībhittipura he will relate the message of the poor poet first to Daśaratha, the Royal Priest, through whose good grace he will see king Bhīmasena and deliver the message to him—thus greatly obliging by his friendly act poor poet Vireśvara badly in need of royal patronage.

The significance of the poem is this. The poor poet wants his qualities to be known to king Bhīmasena. But he cannot approach him direct and, therefore, he appeals to the leading persons of his country, particularly, the Royal Priest, for making his poetic qualities known to the king who will then, he expects, kindly extend his patronage to him. This simple idea has been charmingly expressed by the poet in a novel way.

In this poem there are some verses in which original ideas have been expressed in beautiful language. Thus, a particular woman of village Maṇḍapa frying chick-pea fries the hearts of young-men as well at the same time.¹ Another woman of the same place sews the hearts of men and garments simultaneously.² The derivative meaning of Ātmārāma is quite apt and striking.³ Jail-life has been graphically described in the poem.⁴

The work is not lacking in rhetorical excellence. Qualities of composition such as Cohesion (śleṣa), Lucidity (prasāda), Sweetness and Pregnancy-of-expression (artha-vyakti) prevail in it. The following figures of speech have enriched the composition : Saṃsr̥ṣṭi of Dr̥ṣṭānta and Virodha,⁵ Mālopamā,⁶ Utprekṣā,⁷ Vyatireka,⁸ Rūpaka,⁹ Sahokti, etc.¹⁰

The metre of the poem except that of the last stanza which is in Mālinī is Sārdula-vikrīḍita. In this respect it has a marked difference from the Megha-dūta and a large number of the Dūta-kāvya as usually composed in the Mandākrānta metre. As a matter of fact, this Dūta-kāvya is indebted very little to the Megha-dūta from the point of view of subject-matter, metre or thought.

PREFACE

The Candra-dūta of Jambū Kavi or Jambūnāga Kavi is now published as work No. 3 of the Series Saṃskṛta-Dūta-Kāvya-Saṃgraha. This is a very important work as will be seen from the Introduction.

It has not been considered desirable that the compounds in verses representing Yamakas that are more difficult to interpret than the ordinary ones should be hyphenated and therefore, no hyphens have been used here as done in my previous works, particularly because the readings of the MS. used are not always happy.

No Bibliography has been appended as full bibliographical details of every book or MS. used have been given in loco. The names of all the works used have been italicized in the General Index.

Thanks are due to Mr. P. K. Gode, Curator, Bhandarkar Oriental Research Institute, for kindly sending the MS. to our University Library for my use and to Mr. Bejoy Singh Nahar, B.A., Proprietor of the Gulabkumārī Library, Calcutta, for giving me every facility to use his valuable Library.

INTRODUCTION

Description of the MS. of the Candra-dūta-kāvya, used for this edition.

This belongs to the Bhandarkar Oriental Research Institute, Poona, No. 176 (iv) of A. 1882-83.

Substance : country-made paper. Size : $10 \times 4\frac{1}{2}$ inches. Only one half of a folio. 15 lines only ; about 60 letters in a line. The name of the author is not given here, though, as will be shown just below, it can be definitely assigned to Jambū Kavi. The MS. ends abruptly after verse 14, though the colophon : इति चन्द्र-दूतं काव्यं समाप्तम्, inserted after this verse, indicates the completion of the work. That the present MS. is incomplete is also supported by the fact that the MS. of the Candra-dūta, noticed by Peterson, consists of 23 stanzas. The order of the verses seems rather detached. Look : rather old.

Importance of the Candra-dūta.

The Dūta-kāvyas form an important branch of Sanskrit Literature. They are more or less composed after the model of Kālidāsa's Megha-dūta. The central theme is always the same, viz., a messenger is sent by one party to another, although all sorts of subjects have been chosen, such as love, religion, philosophy, etc. ; also, all sorts of messengers, animate and inanimate, such as the moon, the wind, the swan, the tulsī-leaf, etc.

The Candra-dūta of Jambū Kavi, or Jambūnāga Kavi is important from two points of view, chronological and rhetorical. Chronologically, it is an earlier work than Dhoyī's Pavana-dūta, generally believed to be the earliest extant Dūta-kāvya in imitation of the Megha-dūta¹. There is, however another complete Dūta-kāvya, at least contemporaneous with, if not earlier than, the Magha-dūta, viz., the Ghaṭakharpara-kāvya, attributed by some to Kālidāsa himself, by others to Ghaṭakharpara, traditionally one of the nine jewels of the court of King Vikramāditya. Rhetorically, the Candra-dūta represents the various forms of the Yamaka.

Authorship of the Candra-dūta

There are several manuscripts of Jambū Kavi's Candra-dūta-kāvya ; (1) the MS. belonging to Bhandarkar Oriental Research Institute, Poona, No. 176 (iv) of Bhandarkar's Collection A of 1882-83 (New No. 258 of Gode's Catalogue, 1940, p. 314) ; (2) that belonging to a private library at Ahmedabad as noted by Peterson in his Third Report of Operations in search of Sanskrit MSS. in the Bombay Circle, April 1884-March 1886 (p. 292), no particulars about the library, however, being given ; (3) that belonging to the Baḍā Bhāṇḍāra of the Śambhavanātha Temple at Jaisalmere, as noticed by Prof. S. R. Bhandarkar in his Report of Sanskrit MSS. in Rajputana and Central India in 1904-1905 and 1905-6 (p. 25) ; (4) that belonging to the Baḍā Bhāṇḍāra at Jaisalmere, noticed by C. D. Dalāl in his Catalogue of Manuscripts in the Jaina Bhāṇḍāras at Jaisalmere, Baroda, Central Library, 1923 (p. 43), No. 345 (I), and containing, in 18 folios, probably the commentary of Śānti Sūri as well on the same. As the original text consists of 23 stanzas only, 18 folios would hardly be needed for it alone. The Catalogue of Jaina MSS., compiled by Hamsavijaya, notices a MS. of the Candra-dūta with the commentary of Śānti Sūri. Probably it is identical with this. This MS. is not the same as the manuscript No. 3 above, as it does not bear the name of the author or the date as No. 3 does; (5) that belonging to the Pattana (Patan) Bhāṇḍāra No. I, as noticed in the Jaina Granthāvali, compiled by the conveners of the Jaina Śvetāmbara Conference, Bombay, 1909, p. 319, No. 5. We are not sure whether this MS. is identical with that noticed by Peterson in his Third Report.

There is another anonymous Candra-dūta belonging to the same Baḍā Bhāṇḍāra as the MS. 4 above, recorded by Dalāl in the said Catalogue as 198 (5), p. 23. It is stated in the colophon that in Samvat 1343, i.e. 1287 A.D. Khetasimha of Chitor again purchased the MS.² The word 'again' is significant, as it indicates the MS. was copied earlier than 1287 A.D. The MS. being unavailable

2. MS. No. 198 including (1) Vikramāṅka-kāvya (1-158 leaves. 19 × 2); (2) Vṛndāvana-yamaka; (3) Madhu-varṇana by Keli; (4) Virahiṇī-pralāpa by Keli and (5) Candra-dūta, p. 23 of the Catalogue of Jaina MSS. at Jesalmere by C.D. Dalāl. The colophon to the MS. runs thus:—

संवत् १३४३ वैशाखसुदि ६ सोमे चांधलसुतभां • भौम भां •
काङ्कडसुत भां जगसिंह भां खेतसिंह सुश्रावकैः श्रीषिलकूटवास्तवैर्मल्ल्ये- नेयं पुस्तिका पुनर्गृहीता ।

and no other evidence being at hand, it is not possible for us to assign it to Jambū Kavi definitely.

Of these MSS., only the first one is available, and was kindly lent for my use by Mr. P. K. Gode., Curator of the said Institute. Unfortunately, however, the other MSS. could not be availed of. The library to which the second MS. belonged could not be traced, and no reply from the custodians of the third and the fourth MSS. of the Badā Bhāṇḍāra at Jaisalmere was received inspite of repeated requests.

The first MS. does not give the name of the poet in the colophon anywhere. The colophon to the second MS. also, as quoted by Peterson, does not contain the name of the poet, but as Peterson records it explicitly under the name of Jambū Kavi as the author, there is no doubt that he actually got the name of the poet somewhere in the MS. itself, as it sometimes happens in the case of Sanskrit MSS., or that he had some other strong grounds for assigning the authorship of the poem to Jambū Kavi. So there can be no doubt that the Candra-dūta, the second MS., noticed by Peterson is by Jambū Kavi. The third MS. gives the name of the poet as Jambūnāga Kavi, which, evidently, is the same as Jambū Kavi, whether Jimbū be a misprint, or a misnomer or an alternative name. The fourth MS. is anonymous. The fifth MS. gives the name of the poet as Jambū Kavi. Now, we have to find out the authors of the two anonymous Candra-dūta. As regards the Candra-dūta used by us, the first MS. as noted above, that its author too is Jambū Kavi can be definitely established. (1) In first place, it has the same name and subject-matter as Jambū Kavi's Candra-dūta.

(2) Secondly, the first verse of the Candra-dūta of Jambū Kavi quoted by Peterson, is exactly the same as the first verse of this anonymous Candra-dūta. (3) Thirdly, both the verses, the first and the last, of the Candra-dūta of Jambū Kavi, quoted by Peterson, represent a special kind of rhetorical device called the Yamaka i. e. a group of letters, generally speaking in some pāda or other, is identical with those in some other pāda or pādas of the same verse in exactly the same position³. Now, as the last verse of our anonymous Candra-dūta is unfortunately missing, it is not possible for us to compare it directly with the last verse of the Candra-dūta of Jambū Kavi, although we have found, as noted above, that the first verse of these two Candra-dūtas are one and the same. But, as both the first and the last verses of Jambū Kavi's Candra-dūta represent the Yamaka, there can be no doubt that in the entire poem the very same rhetorical device has been employed, particularly so because in all the works in which the MS. of this Candra-dūta is embedded, the very same thing is found. Now, in all the verses of the anonymous Candra-dūta too the Yamakas are found employed, and as this MS. also is embedded in the self-same series of works, all representing the Yamaka, the missing verses of this Candra-dūta must also do the same. Therefore, there can be no doubt that these two Candra-dūtas are one

3. Cf. for example v. 3 of the Candra-dūta. Here the last four letters in the first and the second, and in the third and the fourth Pādas are the same. This is an illustration of what is known as अनियत-पाद-भागावृत्ति-यमक । and the same. (4) Fourthly, the very same arguments apply as well with regard to the metre employed. The first and the last verses of Jambū Kavi's Candra-dūta, quoted by Peterson, are in the mālinī metre ; and all the fourteen verses of the anonymous Candra-dūta are in the same. Therefore, there is a perfect similarity between the two with regard to the metre too. (5) Finally, both the MSS of Jambū Kavi's Candra-dūta and the anonymous Candra-dūta are found in the very same series of works, viz., the Vṛndāvana-kāvya, the Meghābhyudaya-kāvya, the Ghaṭakarpara-kāvya and the Śivabhadra-kāvya⁴. Thus, as the Candra-dūta of Jambū Kavi and the anonymous Candra-dūta, the first MS., both have the same name, subject-matter, first verse, rhetorical device, metre and appear in the same series of works, it can be asserted without a vestige of doubt that the two Candra-dūtas are one and the same and that the anonymous Candra-dūta is really by Jambū Kavi.

As regards the other anonymous Candra-dūta, the fourth MS. noticed above, its authorship too can be definitely assigned to Jambū Kavi. The MSS. contained

4. The anonymous Candra-dūta is found in a composite MS. i. e. this MS. consists of five different works, viz. 1. Vṛndāvana-kāvya ; 2. Meghābhyudaya-kāvya ; 3. Ghaṭakarpara-kāvya ; 4. Candra-dūta and 5. Śivabhadra-kāvya, the pagination being continuous as found in a single work and the scribe also being the same. Now, in Jambū Kavi's Candra-dūta, noticed by Peterson in his Third Report, pp. 291-292, the same order exists, only the Ghaṭakarpara-kāvya being dropped.

in the Bundle No. 345, viz., 1. Candra-dūta-kāvya ; 2. Meghābhyudaya-kāvya with the Vṛtti of Śānti Sūri, disciple of Vardhamāna Ācārya, of the Pūrṇatalla Gaccha ; 3. Vṛndāvana-yamaka-kāvya (31 folios ; this also evidently contains a vṛtti) ; 4. Rākṣasa-kāvya with a commentary (containing also a panegyric of 4 verses ; dated 1:15 Samvat i.e. 1159 A.D.) and 5. Ghaṭakarpara-kāvya with a commentary (52 folios) represent Yamakas, and therefore, this Candra-dūta is identical with Jambū Kavi's Candra-dūta, which also does the same.

Date of Candra-dūta

The MS. of Candra-dūta belonging to the Baḍā Bhāṇḍāra of the Jainas underneath the Śambhavanātha Temple in a dark underground cellar is dated Samvat 1342 i.e. 1286 A.D. Therefore, the date of the Candra-dūta cannot be later than the middle of the 13th century A.D. Śānti Sūri wrote a commentary on Jambū Kavi's Candra-dūta⁵. Now Śānti Sūri flourished in the 11th century A.D., as is evident from the dates of his Śiṣya-hitā and the commentary of Devendra Gaṇin on the Uttarādhyayana.⁶ He died about 1040 A.D. Thus, on this evidence, it can be definitely asserted that Jambū kavi must have flourished prior to the 11th century A.D.

There is a work called Jina-śataka⁷, by one Jambū Kavi, also called Jambū Guru⁸, belonging to the Candragaccha. Now this Jina-śataka⁹ was commented upon by Sāmba Kavi, also called Śāmba Sādhu and Sāmba Muni¹⁰, in the Śaka year 1025, i.e. 1103-4 A.D., as is stated by the commentator himself in his commentary, the Pañjikā¹¹. It is clear from the concluding

7. Published without the commentary in the Kāvya-mālā Series, saptama gucchaka, 4th revised edition, 1926. There is another Bombay edition (1914).

8. The colophons at the end of the first three paricchedas of the Jina-śataka, entitled Jina-pāda-varṇana, Jina-hasta-varṇana and Jina-mukha-varṇana give the name of the poet as Jambū Kavi; whereas the name at the end of the last or fourth pariccheda, called Jina-vāg-varṇana, is given as Jambū Guru.

verses¹² of this commentary that Jambū Kavi was not alive at the time of its composition and was held in high esteem by the commentator. The way in which the commentator refers to Jambū Kavi seems to imply that the latter flourished a good many years prior to the former. Therefore, the lower limit of the date of this Jambū Kavi may be concluded to be not later than the tenth or the eleventh century A.D.

It is possible, however, to fix the date of this Jambū Kavi precisely with the help of another work, viz., Muni-pati-carita or Manipati-carita, composed by him in 1105 Samvat i.e. 959 A.D.¹³ Thus, on this evidence, Jambū Kavi flourished during the first half of the 10th century A.D.

This Jambū Kavi is, most probably, indetical with Jambū Kavi, referred to by Pārśva of the Candragaccha¹⁴ in his work called Śrāvaka-pratikramaṇa-vṛtti, composed at the Jaina temple of Gambhūkā, 24 miles from Pattan or Pāṭan during the Śaka year 821 i.e. 899—900 A.D.¹⁵ Jambū has been referred to here as a Śrāvaka¹⁶, very learned and of much assistance to Pārśva in the composition of his Vṛtti¹⁷. In 899-900 A.D. Jambū must have been very young, i.e. he must have been born towards the end of the 9th. century A.D, as he composed the Muni-paticarita¹⁸ 40-50 years later. He had already attained the status of a Guru when he wrote the Jina-śṭaka.

18. There is an anonymous work of the same name, published by Paṇḍita Śrāvaka Hīrālāla Hamsarāja. Third edition. Jamnagar, Jaina-bhāskarodaya Printing Press, 1917.

Now, most probably, this Jambū Kavi, the author of the Jina-śataka, was no other than our Jambū Kavi, the author of the Candra-dūta. Both equally had the epithet 'Kavi' explicitly mentioned after their names. There is another fact that strongly supports the identity of these two Jambū Kavis. The style of both the works, the Jina-śataka and Candra-dūta, is similar—rather heavy and artificial, and it is at once evident that their authors laid more stress on śabdālmkāras or mere word-embellishments, anuprāsa or alliteration in the first and yamaka in the second, than on thought or expression. As a result, in both the cases genuine poetry has been sacrificed to artificial rhetorical devices. Thus, as both the poets have the same names with the very same epithets attached, and also the same style and the same strong leanings towards word-embellishments, we may reasonably conclude that they are indetical.

It is a matter of speculation whether the fact of his belonging to the Candragaccha made the author fix upon the moon as the messenger, though, of course, it is not a matter of great importance. The subject-matter of the Candra-dūta is a light one, quite distinct from that of the Jina-śataka and the Munipati-carita but probably the author meant this as a specimen of his rhetorical skill than as a work of mere poetry.

We know of another Jambū, but he cannot be identified with the above Jambū Kavi or Jambū Guru; for, in the first place, this Jambū is always found referred to as Jambū Svāmin, never as Jambū Kavi, there being also no statements whatsoever about his literary activities or poetical gifts in the bibliographical treatises of which we possess not a few¹⁹; secondly, this Jambū Svāmin belonged to the Kaharatarā-gaccha, succeeding Sudharman, and not to the Candra-gaccha as Jambū Kavi or Jambū Guru did.

Thus, while on the direct evidence of the commentary of Śānti Sūri on the Candra-dūta, it can be definitely asserted that Jambū Kavi flourished prior to the 11th century A.D., it can further reasonably be concluded that he, as identical with Jambū Kavi, the author of the Jina-śataka and the Munipati-carita must have flourished towards the end of the 9th century A.D., continuing his literary activities at least up to the middle of the 10th century A.D. So he was earlier than Dhoyī, author of the Pavana-dūta, of the court of King Lakṣmaṇa Sena (12th century A.D.) by a couple of centuries. Therefore, the date of the earliest extant Dūta-kāvya, so far known, in imitation of the Megha-dūta, is pushed back by two centuries, and the Pavana-dūta is no longer to be regarded as such as is supposed by some.

Subject-matter of the Candra-dūta-kāvya.

The Subject-matter of the poem is an age-old one. Here a lady separated from her lover sends the autumnal moon as a messenger to her beloved. She asks the moon-messenger to inform him of her wretched condition even in the midst of autumnal gaiety all around, and request him to return immediately. Then the moon sets, as if to carry out her behest.

Some critical remarks.

The Candra-dūta-kāvya cannot claim any originality of thought or sweetness of expression. On the contrary, as already noted, the easy flow of poesy has all throughout been marred by the artificial rhetorical devices adopted. In fact, it would be wrong to regard it as a piece of poetical composition, pure and simple; but we should look upon it rather as an attempt, not very successful, to show off rhetorical skill, which, most probably, as pointed out above, was the real intention of the author. The readings are not always happy, and in the present form, thoroughly satisfactory interpretations are not always possible.

The verses are, indeed, interesting from the point of view of the Yamaka. Here we get some illustrations of Niyata-pāda-bhāgāvṛtti, Aniyata-pāda-bhāgāvṛtti, and Pāda-vṛtti-sandaṣṭaka yamakas.

Another characteristic feature of the poem is that it is written in the mālinī metre and not in the mandākrāntā, employed in a large number of Dūta-kāvyas.

Other Candra-dūtas.

There are four more Moon-messenger poems, three entitled Candra-dūta and one Indu-dūta. Of these, only the last one is available in print. Short accounts of these are given below.

1. Anonymous Candra-dūta.

The MS. of the Candra-dūta-kāvya, noticed by Kielhorn in his Catalogue of Sanskrit MSS. existing in Central Provinces, Nagpur, 1874, p. 58, consists of 157 verses and is quite different from our Candra-dūta of Jambū Kavi.

2. Candra-dūta of Vinayaprabhu.

The Candra-dūta of Vinayaprabhu²⁰ is a very short Dūta-kāvya in only twelve verses, the first eleven being in Vamśasthavila metre and the last one in Anuṣṭubh. In this poem the separated lady-love is found addressing the moon for carrying her message to her beloved residing at Campā :—

इहास्ति चम्पेति पुरी परा विवो

विशिष्टरामा-कवि-चक्र-शोभिता ।

प्रसर्प्य तत्र त्वय्येति कामिना

निवेदनैयं मम वल्लभाग्रतः ॥३॥

20. Description of the MS. of the Candra-dūta-kāvya of Vinayaprabhu, MS. No. 354 of 1884—1887, Bhandarkar Oriental Research Institute Library. Substance : country-made paper. Size : 10 × 4½ inches. Folio 1. Lines 19 in a-b. Letters : 35-38 in a line. Corrupt.

The messenger Moon is to report to him that the bereaved one, his wife,²¹ is facing death bit by bit :—

भवद्वियोगानल-दग्ध-विग्रहा

मृता न साऽद्यापि वदामि तत् सखे ।

अनल-नेत्राम्बु-चयेन सिञ्चितं

तथा शरीरं निखिलं सुलीलया ॥५॥

The wretched lady fancies that the dark spot in the moon is caused by his look at the cruel faces of those who leave aside their beloved ones :—

ब्रवीमि सत्यं रजनीपतेऽधुना

बभूव यत् कृष्णमिदं तवाऽऽननम् ।

विहाय जग्मुर्निज-वह्मभा द्वि ये

न संशयस्तद्ददनावलोकनात् ॥

Much moved at the piteous bewailings of the love-lorn lady, the moon reports about her miserable plight, as requested, to her beloved :—

अथायमस्या वचनानि चन्द्रमा

निशम्य तत्राऽऽश्रु जगाम शुद्धधीः ।

निवेदयामास तथा तदग्रतो

यथा तथा तत्पुरतो निवेदितम् ॥१०॥

The lover returns forthwith :—

निशापतेर्वाक्य-समूहमौदृशं

निशम्य गत्वा निज-मन्दिरेऽध्वगः ।

स सत्वरं निर्गत-मन्मथ-व्यथ-

स्वकार केलिं निज-कान्तया समम् ॥११॥

21. Note the word वधूँ सयौवनां in v. 6.

The language of the poem is too simple and easy—almost verging on childishness. There is no originality of thought as well. The poet cannot be identical with Vinayavijaya Gaṇin, author of the Indu-dūta. Their styles are quite different.

3. Candra-dūta by Kṛṣṇacandra Tarkālaṃkāra Bhaṭṭācārya.

There is another Candra-dūta by Kṛṣṇacandra Tarkālaṃkāra Bhaṭṭācārya, son of Gopikānta Bhaṭṭācārya, not as yet published. If he be identical with the Bengali Smārta Kṛṣṇa Tarkālaṃkāra Bhaṭṭācārya²², the work must have been composed in the 18th century A.D. But there is no evidence at hand to show that they are identical.

The only known MS. of it has been noticed by Mahāmahopādhyāya Haraprasāda Śāstrin in his notices of Sanskrit MSS., second Series, vol. II, Calcutta, Baptist Mission Press, 1904, pp 50-51. As the MS. is reported to belong to a private individual called Candrakānta Vidyālaṃkāra of Aḍāihazar, Dacca and there is no trace of the said MS. or its owner now, no thorough study of the work is possible. The following account is based upon the few verses reproduced in the catalogue.²³ Allowing for the mistakes that the scribe may have made, the author cannot be said to be a good poet. The subject-matter of the poem is that love-lorn Rāma sends the moon as messenger to Sītā—one, though hackneyed, offering much scope for a full display of poetic imagination. The ideas in the few verses of the poem are not well-expressed and the diction is devoid of any grace. Thus in the last verse :—

22. Author of Dāya-bhāga-ṭikā and Dāya-saṃgraha, also called Dāyādhikāra-krama-saṃgraha and Krama-saṃgraha. Colebrooke says in his Introduction to the Translation of the Dāya-saṃgraha that the great grandson of Kṛṣṇa Tarkālaṃkāra was alive in 1806.

23. Beginning :—

Colophon : इति श्रीगोपीकान्त-भट्टाचार्यात्मज—श्रीकृष्णचन्द्र-
 तर्कालङ्कार-विरचितं चन्द्रदूत-महा[?]काव्यं समाप्तम् ॥

मूर्च्छितात्मा does not mean anything else than मूर्च्छित and therefore, the use of आत्मा here is redundant ; the last two lines do not make clear sense. In the first two lines of the poem, the reading रामाभिरामो should probably be रामाभिरामैः, qualifying अमित-कर-भरैः । The compound आत्मरामाभिरामोत्तमो does not make good sense. In the last line of the second verse of the poem—

जाने प्राण-प्रणय-विकलौ दुःख-शङ्कौ शशाङ्कः,

विकलौ should be विकल ; still, प्राण-प्रणय-विकलः is not at all expressive. In the colophon the work is stated to be a Mahākāvya ; it is really a Khaṇḍa-kāvya, its extent being only 112 ślokaś.²⁴

Indu-dūta by Vinayavijaya Gaṇin.

There is a work called Indu-dūta published in the fourteenth gucchaka of the Kāvya-mālā Series without an introduction containing any information about the personal history and date of the author, subject-matter, etc. The name of the author is not given in the colophon, but from v. 1 the name is known as Vinaya²⁵ and from v. 126 as Vinayavijaya.²⁶ If this Vinayavijaya be identical

For a detailed succession-list of Gurus, see the ग्रन्थ-कर्तृ-प्रशस्ति appended at the end of the लोक-प्रकाश । It is stated here that both the brothers Somavijaya and Kirtivijaya were the disciples of Hiravijaya. Kirtivijaya was the Guru of Vinaya, author of the लोक-प्रकाश- Jina-vijaya Gaṇin and others took much interest in the work and rendered Vinaya some assistance. The work was composed in Śaṃvat 1708 i.e. 1652 A.D. :—

31. V. is also reputed to be the author of the Śānta-sudhārāsa, Naya-karṇikā, Vira-Jinavara-stotra (Hindi), a MS. of which is dated 1673 A.D., etc. This Jinavara-stotra MS. belongs to Scindia Oriental Institute, Ujjain, Gwalior ; see Catalogue of Oriental MSS. 32. Kirtivijaya, author of the Hīra-praśna (also called Praśnottara-samuccaya ; Śrī Hamsavijaya Jaina Free Library Grantha-mālā, No. 18. Ahmedabad, 1923) was the disciple of Hīravijaya venerated by Akbar and author of Kīrti-kaumudī. See the Praśasti of the Kalpathe book must have been composed before Samvat 1734 i.e. 1678 A.D. In any case, the work cannot be of an earlier date than the thirteenth century A.D. as the temple of Vastupāla, evidently the famous minister of Viradhavala of Dholka, has been referred to in the work itself.³² But the mention of Śrī-Tapaganapati in v. 121 who was the Guru of Vinayavijaya shows that the present author also belonged to Tapagaṇa just as the author of the Loka-prakāśa did. In the Grantha-karṭṭṭ-praśasti of the Loka-prakāśa representing a list of succession of the Gurus of the Tapāgaccha, Vinayavijaya refers to the Tapagaṇa as follows :—

sūtra-subodhikā and the colophon to the same ; pp. 194—195 of the printed edition, Śreṣṭhi-Devacandra Lālabhāī Jaina-pustakoddhāra, No. 61 ; Bombay, Nirṇaya-sāgara Press, 1923.

33. Verses 53 and 54, p. 54 of the printed edition, Kāvya-mālā, 14th gucchaka. For detailed biographical account of Vastupāla, see Vastupāla-carita by Jinaharṣa Gaṇin, disciple of Jayacandra, published by Paṇḍita Śrāvaka Hirālāla Haṃsarāja of Jamnagar ; Jamnagar, Jaina-bhāskarodaya Press, 1911.

Therefore, the author of the Loka-prakāśa, etc., and the present author are, most probably, identical. And the present author may be said to have flourished in the seventeenth century A.D.

The Indu-dūta is complete in 131 verses. Vinayavijaya sends the full moon of the month of Bhādra as messenger to his Guru Tapaganapati [Kirtivijaya] for tendering his supplication and homage to him after four months of parting. The route which the moon is asked to follow is Jodhpur to Surat (Sūryapuri).

The messenger, as usual, is, first of all, eulogised and subsequently, requested by the disciple to carry his message to his Guru residing at Gopīpura in Surat. To reach Surat the messenger is to follow a southward course³⁴ and rest for a while on the Suvarṇaśaila on which there are two temples of Avāma and Vāmeṃyadeva and at the foot of which Jālandhara is situated. Then the moon is to start for Rohiṇīpura in which there are innumerable Jaina temples everywhere. Not far from it is the celebrated Ambudādri or Arvudādri, that is Mount Ābu, one of the five sacred hills of the Jainas³⁵. The messenger will be delighted to pay-homage to Rṣabhadeva, the first Tirthaṅkara and Neminātha or Nemisvāmin, the twenty-second Tirthaṅkara, in their temples consecrated to them respectively by King Vimāla³⁶ and Vastupāla³⁷.

For accounts of Vastupāla and Tejaḥpāla and the temples erected by them, see Arisimha's Sukṛta-saṃkīrtana, Merutuṅga's Prabandha-cintāmaṇi, Jinaprabha's Tirtha-kalpa or Vastupāla-saṃkīrtana (composed in Saṃvat 1385 i.e. 1329 A.D.), Udayaprabha Sūri's Dharmābhyudaya and Sukṛta-kīrti-kallolīnī, Jayasimha's Vastupāla-praśasti and Hammīra-mada-mardana, etc.

Vastupāla composed the Naranārāyaṇānanda and the Īśvaramanorathamaya-stotra (Gaekwad's Oriental Series, No. 11).

on the river Nerbuda³⁸. The moon will then visit the neighbourhood of Surat not far from the river Tāpī or Tāptī and finally Gopīpura in Surat.

The actual message is a short one—previous recollections of gratitude on the part of the disciple, his reverence for the Guru, worshipping him constantly, etc.

The metre of the poem is Mandākṛāntā. The colophon expressly states that it is an imitation of the Megha-dūta³⁹; it is so, only in form and metre but not in spirit. The Megha-dūta is a love-poem; the present one is really out and out devotional. The predominant Sentiment (Rasa) in the former is Pathos (Karuṇa); in the latter, Tranquillity (Śānta).

Bhramara-sandēśa.

Incidentally it may be mentioned here in connection with work No. 1 of this series, the Bhramara-dūta by Rudra Nyāyapañcānana, that there is another Bhramara-dūta entitled Bhramara-sandēśa by Vāsudeva belonging to Trivandrum Maharaj's Library. It is a longer work than our Bhramara-dūta and consists of 192 verses. It begins as follows :—

38. Here Āmrabhaṭa built the Jaina temple Śakunikā-vihāra during the reign of Kumārapāla (1143-1173A.D.), King of Pattana (modern Patan), in the 12th century A.D. For his family-tree, see C.V. Vaidya's Mediaeval Hindu India, III. 209.

हर्म्ये रम्ये बहल-विगलच्चन्द्रिकायां निशायां

मन्दं नन्दत्कुमुद-सुरभौ शीतले वाति वाते ।

लोलापाङ्गुला मनसिज-कला-खेलनायासिताङ्गुला

WORKS OF
Prof. Dr. J. B. CHAUDHURI, Ph.D. (Lond.), OF CITY COLLEGE AND UNIVERSITY OF CALCUTTA.

Series No. I: The Contribution of Women to Sanskrit Literature :—

Vol. 1 (Drama). The Camatkāra-taraṅgiṇī of Sundarī and Kamalā, a commentary on Rājaśekhara's Viddha-śālabhañjikā with the original Text and the commentary Prāṇa-pratiṣṭhā of their husband Ghanaśyāma. (In the Press).

Vol. 2 (Kāvya). Sanskrit Poetesses, with English Translation. Second ed, Part A. Rs. 5.

Annals of the Bhandarkar Oriental Research Institute, Vol. XX, Parts III—IV, pp. 331-333:—

 We congratulate Dr. Chaudhuri and his eminent partner in life Dr. Mrs. Roma Chaudhuri on the production of this scholarly volume edited in a scientific manner which should attract not only lay readers but also Sanskritists to the enchanting field of their study.

Vols. 3 and 4 (Pauranic Ritual and Smṛti.) The Dvārakā-pattala by Binabāyī and Gaṅgā-vākyaṅgalī by Viśvāsadevī. Rs. 10/-

Vol. 5 (Tantra). The Sudarśana of Prāṇamañjarī, a commentary on the first paṭala of the Tantra-rāja-Tantra with the original Text. Rs. 3.

The Indian Historical Quarterly, Vol. XVI, No. 4, December, 1940:—

 In a word, we have got a scholarly and scientific edition. I cannot help stressing a particular point which has greatly impressed me. The editor had access only to a single MS. and that again not free from imperfections. The readings I found to be embarrassing have not escaped the editor's vigilant eye and the emendations he has suggested in the appendix are singularly happy and apt. I congratulate Dr. Chaudhuri on his success and the sound and extensive scholarship he has brought to bear on his task.

Vol. 6 (Kāvya). Sanskrit Poetesses. Part B. Rs. 5.

Vol. 7 (Smṛti). The Kāla-Mādhava-Lakṣmī of Lakṣmīdevī Pāyagūṇḍa, a commentary on the Kāla-Mādhava of Mādhava Ācārya with the original Text and two other commentaries, the Kāla-nirṇaya-śloka-vivaraṇa and Kāla-Mādhavīya-vyākhyāna. Part I. Rs. 7/8. (Parts II—V. In progress).

The Modern Review, 1941, July:—

* * * So far as the editing is concerned, we must say that it leaves nothing undone. Dr. Chaudhuri has already edited so many unpublished manuscripts that he may well be looked upon as an expert in this line of work. He has thoroughly mastered the technique of dealing with manuscript materials. * * * Mistakes made by others have been corrected e.g. no less a person than Dr. Haraprasad Shastri made a mistake...and this has been corrected by Dr Chaudhuri.....an earlier opinion held by Kane...Dr. Chaudhuri controverts this view with an array of arguments which leave little doubt in the mind that he is in the right.

Dr. Chaudhuri's edition is so helpful to the reader that even if one does not care to read the original Sanskrit, one can easily be acquainted with the subject-matter of the book by glancing at a full summary of it given in the beginning of the book. ...Dr. Chaudhuri...a place in the world of research and scholarship and we congratulate him on his rapid rise.

Series No. 2:—The Samskr̥ta-Dūta-Kāvya-saṃgraha Series :—

Vol. I. The Bhramara-dūta of Rudra Nyāyapañcānana. Re. 1.

The Indian Historical Quarterly, Vol, XVI, No. 4, December, 1940:—

Prof. Chaudhuri is to be congratulated.....This excellent edition of the Bhramara-dūta is sure to commend itself to all the lovers of Sanskrit poetry and particularly, to those who are interested in the contribution of Medieval Bengal to Sanskrit Literature. We eagerly look forward to the forthcoming volumes of the Series.

Vol. 2. The Vāg-maṇḍana-guṇa-dūta-Kāvya by Vireśvara. Re. I.

Vol. 3. The Candra-dūta-Kāvya of Jambū Kavi. The Introduction contains detailed accounts of other *Candra-dūta-Kāvya*s as well. Annas 8.

Series No. 3:—The contribution of Bengal to Smṛti Literature :—

Vol. 1. The Sambandha-viveka by Śūlapāṇi.

Vol. 2. The Tripuṣkara-sānti-tattva by Raghu-nandana Bhaṭṭācārya. Vols. 1 and 2. Rs. 2.

Vol. 3. The Tithi-viveka by Sūlapāṇi with the Tātparya-dīpikā of Śrīnātha Ācāryacūḍāmaṇi. In the Press.

All the works of the above three Series have been critically edited for the first time with Introductions in English, Notes, Appendices, Indices, Biblioographies, etc.

1. A Catalogue of Sanskrit and Prakrit Books in the India Office Library, London. Published by the Secretary of State for India, India Office, London.
Part I. Other parts in the Press.

Professor R. L. Turner, Director of the School of Oriental Studies and Head of the Department of Sanskrit at the University of London, writes :—

I have just received a copy of the Catalogue of the Library of the India Office, Vol. II, Part I and I feel
I must write to you a line on your very considerable achievement. * * *
